CONDITIONS OF SALE

1. The highest Bidder to be the Buyer, and if any dispute arise between two or more Bidders, the Lot so in dispute shall be immediately put up again and re-sold.

2. The Auctioneer reserves the right to reject any bid which is merely a nominal or fractional advance, and therefore, in his judgment, likely to affect the Sale injuriously.

3. The Purchasers to give their names and addresses, and to pay down a cash deposit, or the whole of the Purchase-money, if required, in default of which the Lot or Lots so purchased to be immediately put up again and re-sold.

4. The Lots to be taken away at the Buyer's Expense and Risk within twenty-four hours from the conclusion of the Sale, and the remainder of the Purchase-money to be absolutely paid, or otherwise settled for to the satisfaction of the Auctioneer, on or before delivery; in default of which the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible if the lots be lost, stolen, damaged, or destroyed, but they will be left at the sole risk of the Purchaser.

5. While the undersigned will not hold themselves responsible for the correctness of the description, genuineness, or authenticity of, or any fault or defect in, any Lot, and make no Warranty whatever, they will, upon receiving previous to date of Sale trustworthy expert opinion in writing that any Painting or other Work of Art is not what it is represented to be, use every effort on their part to furnish proof to the contrary; failing in which, the object or objects in question will be sold subject to the declaration of the aforesaid expert, he being liable to the Owner or Owners thereof, for damage or injury occasioned thereby.

6. To prevent inaccuracy in delivery, and inconvenience in the settlement of the Purchases, no Lot can, on any account, be removed during the Sale.

7. Upon failure to comply with the above conditions, the money deposited in part payment shall be forfeited; all Lots uncleared within one day from conclusion of Sale shall be re-sold by public or private sale, without further notice, and the deficiency (if any) attending such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulter at this Sale, together with all charges attending the same. This Condition is without prejudice to the right of the Auctioneer to enforce the contract made at this Sale, without such re-sale, if he thinks fit.

8. The undersigned are in no manner connected with the business of the cartage or packing and shipping of purchases, and although they will afford to purchasers every facility for employing careful carriers and packers, they will not hold themselves responsible for the acts and charges of the parties engaged for such services.

252—ANTIQUÉ ENGLISH SCARF.

Cream-white silk brocade; filet patterns and two wide borders. Fringed at ends.

Length, 7 feet 5 inches; width, 5 feet 3 inches.

*253—ITALIAN RENAISSANCE TAPESTRY.

In the Italian Grotesque style. The design is of extreme richness and of elaborate detail. Arch-shape panels are filled with biblical illustrations and landscapes, and intervening spaces with figures emblematic of War and Peace, and the background, of rare Venetian red, is covered with an elaborate embellishment of arabesques, armorial emblems, caryatides, classical subjects and garlands, which are typical of the early Italian school. Throughout, the intricate color scheme is singularly choice and delicate and the workmanship of artistic excellence. The borders are of exceptional beauty, with figures uplifting a coronet and coat-of-arms.

Height, 11 feet 8 inches; width, 8 feet.

254—ANTIQUÉ TAPESTRY PANEL.

A tapestry of just the right size to use in the decoration of most modern homes. The style and weave are eighteenth century French. The top and bottom borders are interesting, the latter with serpents in the corners. The scene represents the rescue of a lady from a burning palace—probably of the fascinating sorceress, Armida, by Rinaldo, with which readers of Tasso are familiar.

Height, 8 feet 3 inches; width, 8 feet.

255—ANTIQUÉ TAPESTRY PANEL.

A companion to the preceding.

Height, 8 feet 4 inches; length, 9 feet.

265

341

256—EXCEEDINGLY FINE ANTIQUE FLEMISH TAPESTRY PANEL.

A sixteenth century hunting scene, of exquisite weave, that recalls some of the spirited colored miniatures in the famous manuscript book on hunting of Gaston de Foix. Reds like these were difficult to get then, and are apparently impossible now. Notice the splendid dogs, especially the two in the foreground held on a leash by the queen of the party; notice also the turbaned Saracens, whom it was fashionable to employ as huntsmen. The composition, as a whole, is one remarkably adapted for interpretation on the loom, which abhors perspective. The huge boar, that has just been decapitated, indicates that this is part of the story of Meleager, the figures in the foreground being Atalanta and Meleager.

Height, 8 feet; width, 5 feet 10 inches.

257—ANTIQU TAPESTRY PANEL.

A companion piece to the preceding. The lady with the elaborate head-dress has a gown brocaded with the same pattern as Atalanta in the companion piece. The Herculean figure in the middle ground has displayed his prowess among the contending peasants, as is evidenced by the outstretched victims. A lackey leads up the horses on which the knight may bear away the lady, who appears to be yielding to his pleas.

Height, 8 feet 10 inches; width, 5 feet 9 inches.

258—RARE FRENCH SIXTEENTH CENTURY TAPESTRY.

The ground of this "Mille-Fleur" tapestry reminds one of the famous Lady with the Unicorn series at the Musée de Cluny, and of the piece in the Historical Museum at Berne, showing the arms and devices of the Duke of Burgundy on a Gothic floriated ground. The tapestry before us is of sixteenth century weave and the side borders that are original are Renaissance in style. The top and bottom borders are of later date but most skilfully woven. Of this tapestry, as of the one in Berne, some of the lower part is a restoration.

Height, 11 feet; length, 14 feet.

259—A VERY RARE ANTIQU TAPESTRY.

Portrait of Charlemagne, who restored the Roman empire, and was crowned by the pope in Rome on Christmas day, 800 A.D. A most interesting and important fifteenth century tapestry with sixteenth century border. The weave is coarse—only eight warps to the inch—and of the type that prevailed when tapestry weaving was at its best. The necessary repairs have been skilfully made and in such a manner as to preserve the archaic character. The caption in old French has suffered considerably and reads as follows, the initial letters being discernible, although faded:

Je suis Constour suseseur
Des chrestiens le vray protecteur
Jay mismasence en desaroy
Par lassistance de la crois
Jay destray le paganisme
Et restably le chrnsiosme

A translation of the text, as it probably read in its original form, is:

I am Constantine's successor,
Of Christians the true protector.
I have put the Saracens to rout
By the assistance of the Cross.
I have destroyed Paganism
And re-established Christianity.

Charlemagne was as much a favorite in tapestry as in the songs of the troubadours, and the inventories of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries are full of the story of Charlemagne. The inventory of the tapestries belonging to Henry V. of England, made in 1422, includes: 1 autre pece d'Arras d'or, qui comence le storie, "Sy vees le Roy Charlemayn."

Height, 9 feet 3 inches; length, 10 feet 3 inches.

260—FLEMISH RENAISSANCE TAPESTRY.

A specimen of fine weaving and of artistic conception depicting a garden, palaces and landscape, rendered in harmonious colors.

Height, 91 inches; width, 110 inches.

261—SERIES OF FRENCH TAPESTRY.

261A—BRUSSELS TAPESTRY.

Representing the Eighth Labor of Hercules. Diomedes, son of Mars and Cyrene, and King of the Bistones in Thrace, fed his mares on the flesh of strangers. He was overcome by Hercules and became himself food for his mares, as shown in this tapestry. The story of Hercules has always been popular with weavers of tapestry, and as early as 1498, Jooz, a weaver of Audenarde, ordered designs for the series. In the hall under the Minstrel Gallery at Hampton Court is a fifteenth century Gothic tapestry that pictures the death of Hercules on the left, and on the right the story of the mares of Diomedes.

Height, 8½ feet; length, 14½ feet.

261B—BRUSSELS TAPESTRY.

THE FURY OF THE BACCHANTES

Original Study

THE priestesses who attend the altar of Bacchus have been thrown into a frenzy of rage by the advent of a stranger, and are fiercely attacking him with their sickles and other weapons. A broad field extends to a range of hills on the horizon, and on the right are seen the trees of the sacred grove. The light from a cloudless sky casts a warm glow on the group of scantily clad maidens.

PORTRAIT OF RENÉ DU PUY DU FOU

THE head and shoulders of a middle-aged man with short brown beard, whiskers and mustache. He is clad in a jacket of black velvet, buttoned up tight to the throat, and relieved only by a narrow ruff of white linen round the neck. A flat cap of the same material, with a black ostrich feather, is set on his head. The portrait is nearly full face, the eyes looking straight at the spectator out of the picture, which is strongly lighted from the upper right.

An inscription on the back states that the portrait represents René du Puy du Fou, born in 1528, who was the husband of the widow of Charles de Chavannes, Catherine de la Rochefoucauld.

FAUN ET VÉNUS

BENEATH a great tree, upon which hang a bow and quiver, lies the goddess of beauty, asleep, her left arm thrown carelessly above her head, which is supported on her right hand. From behind the tree creeps a swarthy faun, who pulls at the pink velvet robe which forms her only garment. On the ground close by plays a cupid with a torch. The background shows a vista of rocks and hills melting away into the blue of the sky.

THE DECEITFUL LOVER

In a lofty and simply furnished room an elderly lady is seated before her dressing table, rapturously kissing the hand of a young dandy who is paying her a visit. While her attention is engrossed with his hand, the young man is in his turn embracing the tiring maid, who stands beside him, and endeavors to steal a kiss from her.

The young man is richly dressed in coat and knee breeches of dark velvet, while his waistcoat is elaborately embroidered in gold. He wears a powdered periwig, and carries a sword. The maid is simply dressed in a white petticoat, bound with blue, over which are a short pink upper garment cut low, and a black apron. Her head is bound with a kerchief.

THE TELL-TALE MIRROR

Pendant to the Preceding

A YOUNG woman stands between an elderly man, seated in a chair, and a young one who is opening the door in the act of departure. While one of her hands is clasped to the breast of the old beau, the other is handing a well-filled purse of green silk to the young one. The whole episode is seen by the old man as he looks, with a quiet smile, into a mirror which he holds in his right hand.

The old man is elaborately dressed. A long coat of scarlet with deep gold-embroidered cuffs, knee breeches of the same material, and a long waistcoat elaborately ornamented with gold lace. He wears a full-bottomed wig and square-toed shoes with large buckles.

The young man wears a brown coat, while his waistcoat and breeches are of blue. His hair is dressed in a periwig. He carries a large muff of brown fur, ornamented with three red bows. The lady's dress is quiet but rich.

FRAGMENT OF A LARGER COMPOSITION

THE heads and shoulders of a group of Venetians, the principal figure being a man who is apparently of some importance. His face is in profile to the left, and is set off by a short-pointed beard and whiskers. He wears a flat red cap with a white feather over his left ear, and a cloak of the same color is thrown over his left shoulder. Behind him stand three men, one old, the others young, who indicate by their dress a considerably lower station in life. The dark bearded face of another man is seen on the extreme left peering from behind a pillar. The hanging draperies of an interior are indicated behind the group.

THE nude figure of a young woman, shown to the knees. The right hand reaches over the head out of the picture, clasping some support, while the left rests upon her hip. The whole figure is inclined gracefully to the left. The face is in three-quarter view to the right, the eyes looking upward and out of the picture, which is strongly lighted from the upper right, throwing the white figure into sharp relief against a background of green.

BLIND MAN'S BUFF

ON a grassy knoll a group of young men and maidens are playfully endeavoring to escape from one of their number whom they have blind-folded. The dresses are of the early eighteenth century, the girls in voluminous skirts and low-cut bodices, while the men wear long coats and knee breeches of various colors. The view extends between trees across a plain to a low hill in the distance, while the group is strongly lighted from a warm summer sky.

THE CRUCIFIXION

IN the centre is the Saviour on the cross, flanked on either side by the two thieves, while at the foot of the cross are Mary and the weeping women. The background shows a ledge of rocks, some buildings, and a broad plain stretching to the sky, which is blood red in the sunset. The remainder of the composition is filled in with the figures of the soldiery, while on the left stands one of the disciples, his hands raised in an attitude of prayer. The women are clad in flowing robes of various colors, while the disciple wears a red mantle thrown over a green undergarment.

MADONNA AND CHILD

THE Madonna is seated beneath a canopy supported by angels, holding the Child in a standing position on her knee. Her head is covered by a white cloth, which descends over her shoulders and partially covers a dark-green dress. A cloak of crimson is thrown over her knee. The eyes of both are downcast. The background suggests the towers and buildings of a large city.

MOTHER AND SON

THE three-quarter length portrait of a lady dressed in the style of the late sixteenth century, standing, resting her right hand on the shoulder of her little boy. Over a dress of dark material she wears a long cloak of similar stuff, which is relieved at the wrists by fine linen cuffs. Her neck is encircled by a plain ruff, and a fine lace cap adorns her head. Around her waist is a long chain, the end of which is held by the fingers of her left hand. A gold curb chain bracelet is on each wrist; on the forefinger of her left hand are two jewelled rings, and on the right forefinger she wears her wedding ring and a signet. The little boy is dressed in the same colored material, with a smaller ruff, and wears coral bracelets on his wrists.

PORTRAIT OF A YOUNG NOBLEMAN

THE three-quarter length portrait of a young nobleman with fair hair and complexion, in three-quarter view to the left. His armor is of polished steel, richly damascened with gold, beneath which can be seen a shirt of chain mail. Stiffly starched ruffs encircle his neck and wrists, and his full-bottomed trunk hose are elaborately adorned with gold lace. His right hand clasps the head of a staff, while his left rests upon his hip. Round his neck he wears the insignia of the famous order of the Golden Fleece.

PORTRAIT

BESIDE a small marble-topped table, on which are placed a book and a bowl of flowers, stands a young lady in early eighteenth century costume. Her dress is of simple white muslin, the long-pointed bodice cut low in front, with tight-fitting elbow sleeves which terminate in gauze flounces. The skirt is voluminous and worn over a crinoline, while around the body, but above the dividing line of skirt and bodice, is worn a black belt with large clasp.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER

THE picture shows a fair young woman leading by the hand her chubby little girl. She is dressed in a tight-fitting black bodice cut low and square across the neck, and very short waisted, over which is a white apron clinging close to the figure. The sleeves are cut short above the elbow, to which a pair of long buckskin gloves nearly extend. Her hair is confined in a fine lace cap, and a fichu of the same material is thrown over her shoulders, being fastened in front by a gold pin set with a dark-colored stone. A necklace of similar stones is worn round the throat, the only ornament, save a pair of large gold earrings. Her right hand holds a handkerchief, and is extended as if showing the way to her little girl, whom she holds with her left. The daughter is dressed exactly like the elder woman, save that her apron is black, while her cap and neckerchief are of coarser material. The background shows the front of a large house and some trees.

NORA, SISTER OF THE DUKE OF FERRARA

THE three-quarter length portrait of a middle-aged lady, with a somewhat florid face, in late sixteenth century costume. She is dressed in a bodice of white silk, slightly open and turned back at the throat and wrists, showing the red lining. Her skirt is a dark magenta, embroidered with gold, and over all she wears a heavy cloak of black, with wide, hanging sleeves. Around her neck is a large white linen ruff, open at the throat, to disclose a row of pearls, and rising to the top of the head behind. The hair is brushed high off the forehead into a small knot on top. Her left hand holds a lace-edged handkerchief and rests on her hip, and in her right she holds a small book with two clasps. In the upper right-hand corner is a coat-of-arms, and in the lower right an inscription, almost obliterated, proclaims the sitter as "Nora, the sister of the most serene Duke of Ferrara."

PORTRAIT OF A LADY

THE full-length, life-size portrait of a young lady, seated by a table arranging a number of flowers in a vase. Her right hand is outstretched and holds a tulip, which she is in the act of placing in the vase, while in her left she retains three crimson dahlias. She wears a simple dress of plain white satin, and wears a brooch, earrings and necklace of large pearls, which form the only relief to the somewhat severe simplicity of her dress. A mantle of blue cloth is thrown carelessly over her right shoulder, and descends over the seat to the ground. Her dark hair is brushed back off her forehead, and descends in long ringlets to her shoulders. The background suggests a large mass of rock, to the left of which is a patch of blue sky flecked with clouds.

A ROMAN TRIUMPHAL PROCESSION

Monochrome Frieze

THE frieze consists of eleven pieces, in sepia and white on gold, representing the triumph of a Roman general evidently returning from an Eastern victory. The procession is led by a pair of elephants, attended by soldiers, one of whom bears aloft the corona muralis granted to a general who has captured a city. Lictors, torch bearers, musicians follow, and priests with the sacrificial bull. Then come the captive king and his family, and wagons laden with spoil. The gladiatorial combats and fights between men and lions, given as a spectacle to the people by the conqueror, are also shown. The procession is closed by the triumphant general riding in a chariot, crowned with the laurel corona triumphalis, the most coveted distinction in Rome, while behind him a slave holds the corona etrusca, granted to all triumphant generals.

The end panels show elaborate ornamentations of foliations, birds and other designs.

THE RAPE OF THE SABINES

THE principal figure of the composition is a brawny soldier carrying off, despite her outcries, a young girl. On the left is proceeding a combat for the possession of another woman, while a third is being borne off toward the portico of a building. On a lofty tower to the right the struggle is continued, while in the background a cavalier on a white horse joins in the pursuit of the flying Sabines.

The men are typical Roman soldiers, with helmets and body armor of close-fitting leather. The scene is strongly lighted from the upper left, and the sky is slightly hazy toward the horizon.

THE SACRIFICE OF MARCUS CURTIUS

Companion to the Preceding

THE picture represents the legendary Roman hero, Marcus Curtius, sacrificing himself in order to insure the perpetual duration of the glories of Rome. The story runs that a huge chasm appeared one day in the Forum, and despite all attempts could not be filled up. The augurs, after consulting their omens, announced that if they could find what made Rome strongest, and devote it to the pit, the glory and strength of Rome should endure forever. Marcus Curtius, a young and wealthy patrician, having dressed himself in his best robes, and caparisoned his favorite charger, boldly leaped into the gulf, in the presence of the Senate and the whole population, giving himself as a sacrifice to perpetuate his country's glory.

The hero is mounted on a white steed, having a golden bit and trappings, and a leopard skin in lieu of a saddle. Upon the left are the crowd of those who have come to witness the sacrifice, and nearer the chasm are two young girls and some men, their countenances expressive of grief and horror. On the right a standard bearer stands half out of the picture, while in the background are the massive arches of a building. The picture is lit by a strong glow from a hazy sky, in which float a few clouds.

MUCIUS SCAEVOLA DEFYING LARS PORSENA

Companion to the Preceding

CLAD in magnificent armor, a plumed helmet on his head and a scarlet cloak hanging from his shoulders, Scaevola occupies the centre of the composition. Beneath the breastplate he wears a leather tunic and knee breeches, while his feet are shod with sandals. His right hand is held firmly on the burning coals, while his left grips his cloak. His lips are compressed as if with pain, and he gazes sternly at Porsena, who, seated upon a throne under a canopy, raises his arms as if to ward off his baleful stare. On the ground lies a blood-stained dagger, and the body of the officer whom Scaevola killed in mistake for Porsena is being borne off by an attendant. The background is filled with soldiery, and the canvas side of a tent shows against a sky across which a dark cloud is drifting.

A ROMAN BATTLE SCENE

Companion to the Preceding

IN the foreground of the picture a horse has fallen, carrying down its rider, who is looking with terror on a swarthy foe who grips his arm and is shortening his sword preparatory to stabbing him. Upon the right a mounted soldier, with a broken sword, is shrinking from the point of a spear. The background is filled with a confused medley of struggling men, from among whom is emerging a rider mounted on a great white horse, and a body of spearmen approach through a massive archway. The centre is occupied by a richly dressed general, mounted on a heavy charger. His outstretched right hand grasps a gold-hilted sword, and his horse's trappings are of the same metal. The blue of an Italian sky is overcast by the haze of battle which rises behind the combatants.

LA CRÈCHE

ON the bare sunlit floor of a large room play a number of little children, left in the care of the Sisters of Mercy, while their mothers spend the day at work. Along the wall are ranged a number of cribs for the younger children. A lady visitor is talking with one of the sisters, who stands with folded hands and downcast eyes. Two rude seats, a table and a stove, surmounted by an image of the Virgin, with some flowers, form the furniture of the room.

Height, 14 inches; length, 19½ inches.
